The Fantasy Clip Inks series was created to supply an assortment of imagery for publishers of fiction, indie authors, web designers, roleplaying game publishers, game masters as well as players who require character portraits or other imagery. The license, included below, extends the use of these images to web sites, both commercial and personal, and allows plenty of flexibility in their usage and manipulation.

Let us know how you like them, if there are figures or collections you would like to see, other venues where you think we should be promoting these sets, or if you have any questions on usage rights. Also, send us an email if you would like to be notified when other Fantasy Clip Ink sets become available.

About the Artist: William McAusland is a former freelance illustrator and designer who has produced game imagery for a wide assortment of publishers. Among his clients are Wizards of the Coast, Scholastic Books, Goodman Games, Kenzer & Company, Fantasy Flight Games, Zinga Entertainment and many more. He is also the creative director for Outland Arts, creator of the Mutant Epoch RPG. Learn more about The Mutant Epoch RPG here: www.mutantepoch.com

License

Image Use Requirements & Limitations: These images can be used in both print and web based applications within the body of a text, as a cover, as part of an advertisement, CD cover, logo, or even a T-shirt or poster bearing the publisher's logo or advertising text. They cannot be used in coloring books. The art may be cropped, colored, reduced or enlarged, flipped, distorted or otherwise modified. The Artist's initial or signature need not show up in the final published work; however, in the credits of any product, the statement: Some artwork copyright William McAusland, used with permission must be shown. Images used on a web site must also list the artists name in either the site's credits or under the image, however a link back to Outland Arts is not required.

If any Fantasy Clip Inks image is used within a 'house rules' product or personal character sheet, setting or other non-web, unpublished non commercial creation, giving credit to the artist is not required.

These images absolutely may not be resold as stock or clip art, nor sold as stand alone art for sale on T-shirts, posters, mugs, mouse pads, prints, cards, coloring books, or other articles or by any means unless shown as part of the product cover with the publisher's text accompanying the image.
